SAMPLING INSTRUCTIONS

Interpretation of test data depends on the sample being taken (sampled) in the recommended manner. These notes will help to ensure that this is done. More detailed guides for specific crops are available on our website under Crop Guides. Please advise laboratory if hazardous substances possibly present in/on samples

Compost:

Compost is processed from a mixture of biomass and/or other components, and is not totally uniform in composition. We suggest that you collect several small "grab samples" from your bulk compost and combine these to give a composite sample of approximately 1 kilogram, and store in a stout, sealed plastic bag or container. Bags will be provided by us, on request.

Media:

1. Take at least 15 to 20 sub-samples from sites representative of the area concerned.
2. Approximately 1 litre of mix should be submitted for analysis.
3. Avoid contamination of samples by using clean sampling equipment, and new plastic bags.
4. Send samples to the laboratory as soon after collection as possible. Do not allow mixes to incubate in moist conditions for long periods prior to delivery to the laboratory.
5. Where intensive cropping is involved, it may be advisable to monitor nutrient levels by sending samples for analysis every 3 to 6 weeks.
6. If a nutritional problem is suspected, plant tissue samples should be taken in conjunction with mix samples.
If diagnosing a specific problem, select the sample from the pots showing the most prominent symptoms.
